Mark Harley

Partner, Boss Lawyers

Mark helps businesses protect their commercial interests by advising on and enforcing contracts — through both preventive measures and, when necessary, litigation. Mark has practiced in commercial law, commercial litigation and insolvency law for almost 10 years. He established the firm in 2014.

With degrees in law and information technology, as well as being a director of several companies, Mark speaks the language of business owners and has a first hand understanding of the issues facing his clients.

His experience extends to assisting businesses be paid for goods and services rendered in a range of industries, disputes about the provision of credit and personal guarantees, together with many other disputes arising out of the building & construction industry.

Mark's experience as a litigator helps him anticipate potentially troublesome situations that can arise in all types of disputes.
